Dedication

His sincerity, his humor, his unassuming manner, his psychology, his efficiency, his patience, — all these have made Mr. Lawton endeared to the senior classes, since he first became proctor of Room Seven.

ROBERT CARLETON LAWTON

The Closing Years

Oh may this book to you bring memories
As oft you scan it in the years to come,
May it bring back the joys and cares you knew,
The hours you spent to keep from being dumb.

The ads you helped to get, the Senior play,
The football, track, the gym, the other sports,
A swift review of all the fun you've had
While steering your small bark to wider ports.

The pictures of your classmates tried and true,
Who've helped you into scrapes and got you out,
The memory of the days that you cut class,
The tests you didn't know a thing about!

Four years seemed such a long, long time to us,
When we as freshmen to our classes strode,
We find it hard to say, "Goodbye, dear school",
And go our way out on Life's busy road.

The Class History

Back in September, 1936, a flock of bewildered freshmen approached the portals of Fairhaven High School. Those that survived four years of more or less concentrated education, look back with disdain on that dark September.

Still trembling from the shock of their sudden elevation to the realms of high school students, this group selected Gladys Poenack to be president of the freshman class; Marjorie Wilbor to be vice-president; Ruth Waite to be secretary; and Robert Furness to be treasurer. The role of secretary became a permanent position for Ruth Waite during all four years of high school.

After a much needed Christmas vacation, courage sparked forth in the leaders of this intimidated aggregation long enough to plan a class dance. Along in May, Franklin D. Roosevelt visited Fairhaven, and passed the institution where the Class of 1940 was installed. Shortly after this visit, summer vacation arrived to refresh and strengthen the weary freshmen minds.

The following Fall found fewer obstacles for "Forty" graduates. As sophomores, they chose William Wood to be their president; Marjorie Wilbor again vice-president; Ruth Waite, secretary; and Robert Furness, treasurer. Pulling its collective head out of Julius Caesar for a short interval, the Class sponsored a Sophomore Dance.

In June of that year, Principal George C. Dickey died leaving memories of a good friend and respected leader.

The next two months were devoted to the serious business of acquiring the dignity befitting Juniors. September brought a principal, officers, and a storm. Mr. Chester M. Downing arrived to become headmaster. Alan Gault became president of the Junior Class; Thomas Muldoon, vice-president; Ruth Waite, secretary; and William Wood, treasurer.

Then came the hurricane. Books, themes, and tests mysteriously disappeared in the great wind. Of no historical importance were the events of the following winter, but the next Spring, amid park benches and flower-laden trellises, the pulchritudinous Marjorie Wilbor was crowned queen of the Junior Prom. On Junior Day, the Class received the customary admonitions and counsels from the departing Seniors.

After summer vacation the Class of 1940 again assembled, and chose Thomas Muldoon to be president; William Wood, vice-president; Ruth Waite, secretary; and Winston Pierce, treasurer. Gladys Poenack headed the Honor Society, and George Bunnell the Student Council.

Having acquired and wishing to maintain the reputation of precedent-breakers, the Seniors sponsored a Sweetheart Hop at which Nathalie Tallman and David Blaha were the outstanding couple. "A Tale of Two Sillies" was the dramatic event of the year, and its characters will long be remembered.

Diplomas in hand, the Class of 1940 departed from the Fairhaven High School, having left their good wishes and position to the Junior Class.

FREDERICK HENRY BARNES, '40

The Class Prophecy

You might have seen me on my journeys with the automobile magnate for whom I am personal secretary. Certainly, we visited all corners of the Western Hemisphere. One day, in New York, last year, March 7, 1950, to be exact, I met an old friend in the Waldorf-Astoria. She was Nathalie Tallman, well-known stylist. This chance encounter aroused my curiosity as to the activities of others of my Fairhaven High School classmates.

Constant observation finally brought me in contact with some of the alumni. On a rushed trip to the West Coast, I met "Benny" Morris, who piloted the huge skyliner on which I was a passenger. In San Francisco, arrangements for my employer's transportation through the city had been made by John Rogers, owner of The Golden Gate Taxi Company. Howard Tinkham, manager of "The Tinkhamtown Tavern", and "Frankie" Almeida, head bellboy, met us at the door of the hotel. Donald Gifford gave me a wild ride in the elevator, and we tiptoed past Room 13, Floor 13, where Senator George Bunnell was preparing for a long filibuster in the next session of the Senate. After dinner, while my employer discussed the housing problem with Miss Gladys Poenack, head of the National Housing Commission, I went to the "Trocadero" and heard "Don" Cray and his "Crazy Cradlers". Familiar "Cradlers" were Howard Odiorne with his clarinet; Earl "Beat it Out" Bryant; Marjorie Wilbor, Roberta Tripp, Ruth Waite, and Millicent "Brenda" Lincoln, violinists. Duncan Campbell was there with his flute, and Roger St. Onge and Paul Keane were in the brass section with their trumpet and tuba, respectively. Rita Everett announced the numbers. Proprietor T. Joseph Muldoon and bouncers, George Laronda and Woodland Drake said good-night to me. On my way home, I passed the hall where Anastasia Gulecas was scheduled to give a piano concert.

The next day, our party inspected a motion picture studio where we saw Robert Knipe playing the lead in "Abe Lincoln at Gettysburg." His leading lady was Hedy Sheridan whom I recognized as Janet Clark of my high school days. Director Minot Eaton looked very distinguished with his Van Dyke beard. While I was glancing over the scenario, Producer James Macyvitsky boomed in demanding immediate action on Eleanor Dixwell's new picture, "Hawaiian Nights". William Thompson, owner of a national chain of theatres, was also in the studio. Theresa Mangham was assistant to Max Factor.

Months later I arrived in the Panama Canal Zone on the Daffinee Lines' steamer, "S. S. Dick". My trip down had been very profitable in that I had met several more F. H. S. alumni. Winfield Freeman was the steward on the boat. Francis Tucker captained the ship, and Everett Thoits was chef. I had encountered Henry Gilmore and Alan Gault en route to Paraguay to join an engineering expedition, which was to clean out the pest-ridden jungles. They had recently met Ada Pittsley, who, they said, was on her way to become a missionary in the Society Islands of the South Seas. As we neared the Canal Zone, Radio Technician, John Duarte, picked up a report from a nearby South American country of a revolt in Uruguay lead by Warren Monk. This exclusive scoop was immediately wired to Bob Foster in New York, who was the owner of The New York Daily Chronicle.

Commander-in-chief of the Canal Air Force was my old school-mate, Norman Gingrass. When I told him of my plan to look up all the 1940 graduates, he directed me to Bob D'Anjou's Coconut Milk Bar where I found Gertrude Duval, Rose Callahan, Jean Blanchard, and Barbara Johnson waiting on customers. Barbara told me that Ralph Swift and George Hadfield had opened a tobacco shop, and specialized in hand-rolled stogies nearly a foot long. Albert Alvernaz had just left for the Hawaiian Islands, where he was to appear in a series of guitar concerts.

My employer is a great baseball enthusiast, and every Spring visits a different training camp. The Spring after my journey to the Canal Zone we went down to see the Red Sox pull out the kinks. The club was veritably full of Fairhaven men. I saw Elton Ashley warming up the arm that was later to take the pennant away from the Yankees. He was supported by Gerald Pacheco in center field,

Robert Furness on second base, William Chocquette on third base, Ernest Langevin as short-stop, and Leo McDermott as relief pitcher and right fielder. The boys could not offer me definite information about other graduates, but suggested that I make a trip back to Fairhaven and see if any had stayed there. I planned to do this on my next vacation.

From Florida we sped back to New York on a streamlined flyer. Arriving in Grand Central Station, we saw Porter Jim Gomes trying to get his baby some new shoes. Jim interrupted the latter task long enough to take our bags to a taxi which was driven by Allan Booth. William Wood and Kenneth Vallett had become co-owners of the Hotel New Yorker where we stopped. They promised to look around for ex-Fairhavenites. Ada Heuberger was their switchboard operator, and Stanley Baldwin was head waiter in the hotel dining-room. The next day while I was browsing around in Charles Mello's bookstore, I saw among the latest books: The Dawn Came by Frances Burns; Inside Russia by Fred Barnes; Simplified Football by the All-American Rhode Island State Center, Cahoon; Mother Arruda's Cook Book; and Within the F. B. I. by John Reilly.

I spent an interesting afternoon at the radio shortly after that. My attention was first attracted by the familiar voice of announcer George Long of the ever-perfect diction who introduced Postmaster-General Astin. The next program was an address by Miss Ruth Cummings, President of the Federation of Women's Club, on the subject, "Why This Country Should Have A Woman In The White House."

My long delayed vacation at last matured, and I found myself on the bus coming over the bridge. I stopped at the Bridge Diner and chatted with Proprietresses Shirley Fournier and Audrey Dyson. The diner had been redecorated by Dorothy Pacheco, who had started in that business as a hobby. The High School had a new corps of teachers: Win Pierce was coach; Herbert Smith succeeded CMW as headmaster; Marjorie Kitching was heading the English Department; Hazel Howarth was managing Fairhaven High's cafeteria; Martha Pearce acted as Girls' Coach; Doris Barlow succeeded Miss Russell;

Barbara Hughes was school nurse; Ernest Medeiros had charge of the engine room and the boilers. I also learned that Peggy O'Neill was president of the New Bedford Savings Bank. Peggy is one of the first women in the country to become president of a bank.

In Fairhaven center, Avery Stitt was running a photography shop. Dr. Edwin Perry had his offices in the Masonic Building along with Clifford Tripp and Robert Ohnesorge, insurance salesmen. Barbara Moody, who had made a place for herself in the literary world as a writer of critical essays had moved back to town. Downstairs in the same building where Freeman's Department store used to be, Priscilla Alden and Sally Champlin had started a dress shop. Jean Lingham was doing all the designing, and the models were Esther Brant and Thelma Ashley. The seamstresses were Helen Silva, Lucy Perry, Gilda Arruda, and "Tillie" Santos. The space over Browne's Pharmacy had been renovated and made into a suite of offices. Frank Marek acted as contractor. Herbert Wilder had a shipyard at the foot of Center Street. Anna Rogers, proprietress of a tea shop in the center told us that Jeanette Mulvey had graduated from St. Luke's Hospital, and that Arlene Look, a graduate of the same institution, was now a dietitian. Chief librarian of the Millicent Library, Margaret Marsden had as her assistants, Doris Livesey and Helen Peters. It still remained the favorite hangout of high school students. "Fred" Colwell was typesetter of The Fairhaven Star. Alice Bourassa was writing the Woman's Page. The former Richard's Motors had a large sign out front, "Earl Phillips, Good Used Cars." Lillian Lacerda was a basketball instructor at the Y. W. C. A. in New Bedford, and George Cuddy was the same at the Y. M. C. A. Mary Constantino, Lillian Souza, and Anna Cormier had joined the ranks of housewives whose work is never done. Margaret Bulman was fifth-grade teacher at the Rogers School.

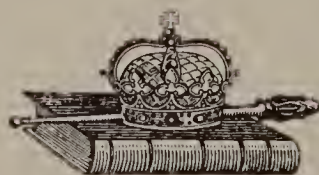

Laura Soares, Dorothy Sylvia, and Mary Duarte, as welfare workers in New Bedford, were doing their bit to make the world a better place in which to live. Claire La Plante was a buyer in the millinery department at Cherry's. Clara Viera and Jacqueline Lemieux worked at the same store coloring photographs. Gertrude Mayer, a salesgirl, was convincing the public of the merits of the dresses in Dorothy Gifford's shop on William Street.

While riding through Mattapoisett, Coach Sezak's favorite town, I passed by "Steve" Vaughan, who had bought the rights to a stream, stocked it with trout, and was selling rights to fish there. Bill Hiller and John Hussey were running the General Store, and welcomed me to the circle of people sitting around the stove. They told me that Nelson Dexter had purchased a boat and had joined the fishing fleet. Eleanor Howland was conducting a tourist inn right next door to the town library. "Ken" Tuttle finally got enough votes and became town treasurer. Ethel Tinkham was a select-woman. One old fellow sitting around the stove said that "Vic" Mandeville had a garage, and was trying to make a device that would allow modern cars to run on kerosene as his old car did.

I now concluded my search for '40 graduates, and have written this report for the benefit of you, my classmates. May it reach you soon! With it go my best wishes for your future success and happiness.

ROBERT GRANT COOK, '40

The Class Will

We, the Class of Forty Watt Minds, being in full possession of the census takers and a basketball-playing faculty, do hereby ordain, declare, and establish this to be our last will and testatum.

To the faculty we leave our sympathies; they will have to contend with the Class of Forty-One.

To the Sophomore Class we present our treasury balance, with the stipulation that it will not be spent all in one place.

To the Freshman Class we return Miss Hoyle, with our thanks for her part in producing the Senior Play.

What we originally intended to confer upon the Junior Class was censored, so we accord them an opportunity to develop their imagination.

To posterity we leave the memories of Mr. Charles F. Prior.

The special and detailed bequests are as follows:

Sarah Ellis Champlain makes a gift of her bubbling vitality to Margie Galligan, while Millicent Lincoln confers upon Irene the title of The School's Official Heart-breaker for the coming year.

Ashley passes the deal to Stevens.

Minot Eaton leaves consolation for "Skippy" Wilbor.

Ada Pittsley donates her lunch room chair to "Pie" Spooner.

Avery Stitt gives his hair to Coach Clements.

"Frankie" Almeida's height is handed down to "Charlie" Hammond, while Bunnell bequeathes his seat to Hawes.

"Mucker" Ohnesorge leaves his bicycle to anyone who does not wish to miss a football practice in four years.

Ada Heuberger bestowes her giggle on Phyllis Sullivan.

Barnes relinquishes his ability to get to school on time to nobody in particular and everybody in general.

Marjorie Willis Wilbor puts one well-worn, well-fingered, silver basketball charm in the trophy case.

For the Class,

JAMES BALUSTER MACY, '40.

Done this first day of the month of brides and foolish men, in the year of grippe, heavy snows, and intense cold, nineteen fooey.

The Fairhaven Honor Society was organized in 1927. The attainment of membership in this Society, which is both an honor and a responsibility, has been the ultimate aim of all the students. It is felt that the Honor Society serves a worthy purpose in helping to maintain a high standard of scholarship in the Fairhaven High School.

Besides the officers the following Seniors are members of the Society: Allan Booth, Esther Brant, Ruth Cummings, Shirley Fournier, Henry Gilmore, Anastasia Gulecas, Eleanor Howland, Ada Heuberger, Claire LaPlante, Margaret O'Neill, Edwin Perry, and Marjorie Wilbor.

The Student Council

GEORGE A. BUNNELL, JR.
President

ROBERT B. CAHOON
Vice-President

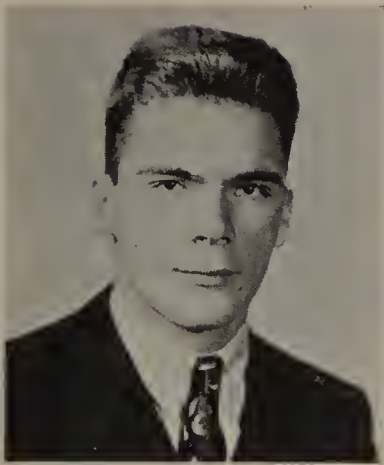

MARJORIE W. WILBOR
Secretary-Treasurer

The Student Council of Fairhaven High School was formed by our late principal, Mr. George C. Dickey, as a median through which the representatives of the student body could voice their opinions on matters concerning their activities and behavior.

This year the Council was host to over 200 delegates who attend the convention of the South-Eastern Branch of Student Councils held here in the High School. In April, the Council went to Fall River to attend a similar convention held at B. M. C. Durfee.

The Student Court

WINSTON G. PIERCE
Chief Justice

Constant violators of the traffic rules in the High School are punished through the judgment of the Student Court. The need for such a court was first recognized in the Student Council. As a result, in 1938 the Student Court of Fairhaven High School was formed. Its policy has been and always will be one of fair judgment in all cases.

Representatives

GLADYS POENACK
to Fort Phoenix Chapter, D.A.R.

MARJORIE WILBOR
to New Bedford Woman's Club

RUTH CUMMINGS
to New Bedford Woman's Club

Gladys Poenack was chosen by the senior class and the faculty as the "Good Citizenship Pilgrim" to represent Fairhaven High School at the Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution State Conference held in Boston.

This honor is awarded to the senior girl possessing to an outstanding degree qualities of character, personality, and patriotism.

Several years ago, the New Bedford Woman's Club started the practice of asking representatives from the high schools of Greater New Bedford to attend their meetings. This year the Senior Class chose Ruth Cummings and Marjorie Wilbor to represent them at the club house. School work interfered with the girls' attendance at every meeting, but those to which they went were very enjoyable.

One of the favorites was a lecture on Egypt and Egyptian customs, given by a native girl in costume who was studying voice at the Boston Conservatory of Music. The officers and members of the club were very gracious hostesses, and always made the girls feel welcome and at ease.

The Cheerleaders

“When we yell, we yell like F-A-I-R-H-A-V-E-N!” Multiply your own voice by nine hundred. Add a squad of nine active cheerleaders uniformed in blue and white. You then have some conception of the cheering section at an F. H. S. football game. Popularizing new cheers and augmenting school spirit are the duties of the cheering squad.

This year Marjorie Wilbor, Nathalie Tallman, and Hazel Howarth headed this group of girls comprised of Irene Erickson, Ruth Patasini, Irene Galligan, Priscilla Lewis, Nancy Church, and Claire Duval. In addition to leading the Fairhaven supporters at home games, Marjorie Wilbor and Nathalie Tallman were active during the basketball season.

The M

Corridor

Staff of "The Huttlestonian"

At the beginning of this school year, doubt was expressed as to whether there would be a 1940 senior yearbook. That doubt is removed by this issue of The Huttlestonian. The staff has complied as far as possible, with the wishes of the class. They have given you a yearbook containing the mere essentials for a high school annual, according to your requests. The outstanding innovation in this issue is the cover design which is a representation of the West Entrance, and is symbolic of the passing classes in Fairhaven High School. To next year's staff, the editorial board wishes success in producing a more representative Huttlestonian.

Staff of "The Tower"

High school papers vary from gossip sheets to journals. While our paper touches neither of these extremes, it is a periodical of which we may be proud.

Three years ago, "The Daily Blah" and "The Amalgamated Transcript", two rival papers in the school, decided to merge their activities and run successfully one paper—"The Tower".

Fred Barnes and Bob Cook pound out for us a bi-monthly edition featuring an editorial, which is blistering yet constructive. A typical copy of the paper contains school news, athletic events, an editorial, gossip, and a page about music. Members of the staff are editor, Fred Barnes; assistant editor, Robert Cook; music, Alan Gault and Delbert Hirst; reporters, Gertrude Duval and Gladys Poenack; and sports, George Long and Robert Cahoon.

Memoirs of the Senior Play

This year, instead of having a member of the audience comment upon the annual production of the Senior Class, we are giving you inside reminiscences from the cast itself about "A Tale of Two Sillies".

Robert Knipe — I shall never forget the first rehearsal of my love scene with Roberta. We did it six times. Exhausted, Miss Hoyle finally gave up, with the feeble hope of improving me next day. At the end of a week, everyone in the cast had given up. It was their opinion that as a lover I was a fizzle. It was also my opinion. At least, I know what not to try again."

Roberta Tripp — "I remember the exciting card games that were played back stage, and were the means of most of us missing our cues; how nervous we were that the play would not be a success; how relieved we were when we found that the audience was with us!"

Ada Heuberger — I recall how Benny Morris fell and cut his neck while hurrying to get on set; the confusion back stage when the performance was in its infancy; the fun mixed with the work; the grand feeling of being in the cast of the play."

Nathalie Tallman — "My only remark, after raging and beaming all over the stage for weeks on end, is that it was fun anyhow! We certainly owe a great deal to Miss Hoyle—the ever, well almost ever, patient director."

Benson Morris — "It was that moustache!!! — that nose-tickling, sneeze-developing, sticky piece of old hemp. They pasted that thing on my face, and then said, 'Go in there and act!' Act! How could I? I went to say something, and the audience started to laugh because that cursed thing was jumping up and down on my face. Now when it is all over, they ask me to say something nice about the play! Gad, what a life!"

Fred Barnes — "The thing that amazed me most during the production was the sudden transformation of four members of the cast from young, somewhat childish students, into four middle-aged people who had met and conquered many serious obstacles in their journey along the road of life."

Janet Clark — "Cues! Cues! Cues! That is all we heard until we almost watched for them in the average conversation. Many disastrous yet funny things happened because of failure to take a cue. Ask Benny Morris!"

Herbert Smith — "Embarrassing! Boy, I'll say it was! I ran out onto the stage in the first act, and began to speak my third act lines. What impressed me about the affair was not my mistake, but the look of disgust, despair, and hopelessness that spread over Miss Hoyle's face. I laughed, as I usually do, and went off stage to try it over again."

George Bunnell — "Aside from the yells of, 'Quiet back stage!' and 'Come in on your cues!' from Miss Hoyle, a jolly, good time was had by all."

Warren Monk — "I shall always remember dress rehearsal! Bunnell had me handcuffed to a chair; then he couldn't get the handcuffs unlocked! It was my embarrassing moment."

Miss Hoyle — "It would be silly to say that there were only two sillies in "A Tale of Two Sillies". In fact, there were ten sillies and every silly rehearsal found each one of the sillies, sillier than the day before, until the director herself ended up as silly as any of the other sillies, and we were all silly enough to be sorry when it was over, and we had to be sane again!"

The Orchestra

The Fairhaven High School Orchestra was organized in 1926, and was under the direction of Clarence E. Jones of New Bedford. In 1929 Mr. Frederick William Kempf was appointed conductor of the group, and under his able leadership the orchestra has flourished. Each year, the orchestra, assisted by the Fairhaven High School Chorus, gives a concert. The orchestra also plays in many of the school activities. Although it was very small at the beginning, it now has forty-five members, and is an organization of which we may all be proud.

The Band

Our own Fairhaven High School band has won much praise and is considered one of the finest in New England. In 1938 it received a high rating at the New England Music Festival at Burlington, Vermont. Much credit is due to Mr. Arey, conductor, and Miss Elizabeth Hastings, faculty adviser, for the success of the band. Among the activities of the band are an annual trip to Boston with the New Bedford High School Band to hear worthwhile music. Comradeship is shown by both the bands in as much as they play at each other's schools. At present our band is planning to take part in both the New England and Massachusetts Music Festivals.

Football

Second row — Ass’t Coach Melvin Entin, “Swede” Fielding, George Laronda, Bob Cahoon, Jim Macy, Win Pierce, Ernie Langevin, and Coach Samuel Sezak.

Third row — “Pete” Luzon, “Skip” Wilber, “Zeke” Ashley, George Hadfield, Bob Foster, and “Mike” Reilly.

The football team this year was big and powerful and it came up with a moderately successful season. Four games won; two more were tied; and three were lost. The team dropped the annual slugfest to Durfee and also lost the classic to New Bedford. The other game lost was to Brookline.

That does away with the gloomy part of the season and now a little cheer is in order. The brightest moments of the campaign were just before the end, namely, the Attleboro and the Hingham games. The Attleboro game was a scoreless stalemate, but both teams were wide open that day and it is really surprising that the game did not turn out as a high-scoring affair. Each team threatened time and again to tally only to be frustrated.

One of the sweetest moments of the season was after the victory over Hingham. The boys in blue worked hard that day and really earned the decision. It was one of those contests that are touch-and-go from start to finish. One play that worked to perfection gave Fairhaven the game. Everybody did his job on the play and there was no stopping it.

Midway during the season, it was announced that Coach Sezak would leave Fairhaven at the close of the football season for a position at the University of Maine. The Coach had been with us since the Fall of 1936 and all were sorry to see him leave. He was an able coach and a good friend to all, and he leaves behind pleasant memories.

At the annual banquet, Dave Blaha was elected to fill the shoes of "Bull" McDermott as captain. It was also announced that Ernie Langevin had been chosen the most valuable player, an honor he rightly deserved.

The complete scores are as follows:

Fairhaven	19	Barrington	0
Fairhaven	33	Dartmouth	0
Fairhaven	6	Taunton	6
Fairhaven	0	Brookline	10
Fairhaven	2	Durfee	6
Fairhaven	47	Angel Guardian	0
Fairhaven	0	Attleboro	0
Fairhaven	6	Hingham	0
Fairhaven	0	New Bedford	13

Basketball

Second row — Coach Alexander Clement, Bob Furness, Gordon Bradley, Dick Daffinee, Cal Hayward, and Ass't Coach Mel Entin.

Third row — Warren Baldwin, Howie Pimental, Bob Corbett, Ernie Drieson, and Manager Frank Almeida.

The new Coach, Alexander Clement, did not have much material to work with at the beginning of the 1939-40 season. Most of the men were green and none had had much experience. However, he molded them into a team that was always in there pitching, no matter what were the odds or score against them. Towards the end of the season they showed some signs of becoming basketball players.

The team played a hectic schedule of twenty-two games, winning eight and dropping fourteen of them. There was a riot following a rough game with Durfee at Fall River, and a few days later Fairhaven severed athletic relationships with Durfee.

Baseball

Third Row: Norman Desroches, Howard Pimental, Ernest Drieson, Woodland Drake, Mercceline Luiz, Gordon Bradley, and William Benson.

Many boys came out for baseball this year to combat the heavy schedule the team is carrying. Even though record of this season thus far has not been too impressive, the experience gained should prove beneficial. A victory over the Varsity Club started the team on its way, and it is hoped that the boys may be as successful in the remaining games. In the initial contest of the season, Elton Ashley, Raymond Bourque, and Leo McDermott entered the hall of fame by pitching a no-hit no-run game.

Track

Second Row: Raymond DeRoche, Joseph Goulart, Steven Vaughn, Henry Gilmore, James Gomes, Harold Young, Harvey Ewing, Roy Ingham, Rodman Wing.

Third Row: John McLeod, Charles Archibald, Elton Ashley, Earl Fisher, Howard Odiorne, Robert Furness, George Laronda, Dennis Mahoney, and Arnold Egan.

Although the season is still young as this book goes to press, we find ourselves ably represented on the track. There is stiff competition for our boys, but if they continue to show themselves in the triumphant style they displayed against Hyannis, we have many victories in store for us. The team also made a fine showing with Quincy, and collected many points against strong rivals.

Girls' Basketball

This year's Varsity Squad, many of whom are entitled to recognition, was made up of the following girls: Lillian Lacerda, captain; Barbara Johnson, manager; Sally Wilde, Ruth Patasini, Marjorie Wilbor, Sophie Renaud, Barbara Sears, Jacqueline Lemieux, Irene Stevens, Eleanor Roderick, Eleanor Layton, Martha Pierce, and Rita Fortin.

Girls' Hockey

The girls who participated in one of the "hit" and "miss" games of girls' sports were the Varsity Squad comprised of the following: Sally Wilde, manager and captain; Martha Pearce, Sophie Renaud, Barbara Fassett, Dorothy Richards, Cynthia Field, Irene Stevens, Beryl Sterns, Eleanor Roderick, Mary Bouley, Millicent Whetmore, Priscilla Furtado, Lois Swift, Gladys Thatcher, Barbara Sutcliffe, and Irene Erickson.

NORTHEASTERN UNIVERSITY

College of Liberal Arts

Offers a broad program of college subjects serving as a foundation for the understanding of modern culture, social relations, and technical achievement. The purpose of this program is to give the student a liberal and cultural education and a vocational competence which fits him to enter some specific type of useful employment.

College of Business Administration

Offers a college program with broad and thorough training in the principles of business with specialization in Accounting, Journalism, Banking and Finance, Public Administration, Industrial Administration or Marketing and Advertising. Instruction is through lectures, solution of business problems, class discussions, motion pictures and talks by business men.

College of Engineering

Provides complete college programs in Engineering with professional courses in the fields of Civil, Mechanical (with Diesel, Aeronautical, and Air Conditioning options), Electrical, Chemical, Industrial Engineering, and Engineering Administration. General engineering courses are pursued during the freshman year; thus the student need not make a final decision as to the branch of engineering in which he wishes to specialize until the beginning of the sophomore year.

Co-operative Plan

The Co-operative Plan, which is available to upperclassmen in all courses, provides for a combination of practical industrial experience with classroom instruction. Under this plan the student is able to earn a portion of his school expenses as well as to make business contacts which prove valuable in later years.
